

The Past and Future Tenses

Is the underlined word in each sentence a past-tense verb, a present-tense verb, or a future-tense verb? Mark your answer on the answer sheet.

1. I watched an interesting television show last night.
A past      B present      C future
2. This show airs every Wednesday at 8:00 in the evening.
A past      B present      C future
3. Each week the show explains a different mystery from history.
A past      B present      C future
4. The show last night discussed the Bermuda Triangle.
A past      B present      C future
5. I learned many interesting and spooky facts about the area.
A past      B present      C future
6. There are so many curious subjects to explore.
A past      B present      C future
7. Next week's show will be about the lost city of Atlantis.
A past      B present      C future
8. That show sounds very entertaining and educational.
A past      B present      C future
9. Please remind me when the show is on.
A past      B present      C future
10. I will tell you in school that day.
A past      B present      C future
11. An upcoming episode will reveal the secrets of old-fashioned circuses.
A past      B present      C future
12. My family enjoys that television show, too!
A past      B present      C future
13. My parents videotaped every episode so far.
A past      B present      C future
14. We watch the shows any time we want to!
A past      B present      C future
15. I will videotape the episodes I watch, too.
A past      B present      C future
16. If I keep watching this show, I will learn a lot about history.
A past      B present      C future
17. Of all my school subjects, I enjoy history the most.
A past      B present      C future
18. I always learn something new and interesting!
A past      B present      C future
19. I hope they make a program about Amelia Earhart.
A past      B present      C future
20. Her disappearance puzzled many people.
A past      B present      C future